

Thursday's Post.

From the LONDON GAZETTE, Jan. 7. WAR OFFICE, Jan. 7. SIXTEENTH Regiment of Foot—Brevet Major Patrick Ross...

April last, bound to Langson, but three days after leaving the Island, the Manila Scavenger, and five other vessels, were attacked by pirates...

The following Pardon has been recently issued:—James Gibson, who has purchased Austria, furnished with a passport to Prussia...

Several transports from Cork, with part of the 43rd and 53rd Regiments, were intended to join the expedition upon the Continent...

A letter from York, dated Saturday morning, states that on the preceding day, two transports, the Mary of Sunderland, and two companies of the 27th, or Inniskillen regiment...

On Friday last, the morning of the 29th December, when they made Hellgoland. For some unknown reason, they were, by signal, ordered to lay-to here...

Official advice has been received of the loss of the Heider transport, on the coast of Holland. She had 500 men and 24 officers of the 5th regiment on board...

It is reported, that immediately upon the meeting of Parliament, a Bill will be submitted by Ministers to its consideration, for the more effectual increase of the Military Force of the country...

The brigade of gunner-drivers is to undergo an immediate augmentation of five troops. Some new regulations have lately established between the Quartermaster General's department and the Board of Ordnance...

It is having come to the Commander in Chief's knowledge that it is unusual in many Regiments, but more particularly in the Regiments of Militia, for one Officer to be charged with the payment of two or more Companies...

The following judicious Order has been issued by the Duke of York, as a check to the practice which has so long prevailed of appointing one Officer to the payment of several Companies...

The following is an extract from The Donkey Gazette, dated June 12, 1805:—On Saturday last anchored in the harbour, the ship Ariel, Capt. R. W. Loane, from Mocha...

The following is an extract from The Donkey Gazette, dated June 12, 1805:—On Saturday last anchored in the harbour, the ship Ariel, Capt. R. W. Loane, from Mocha, when she sailed on the 4th inst. in company with the Hon. Company's cruiser Princess Augusta...

The following facts respecting an event that has excited much interest in Suffolk, may be related:—Mr. De la Haye, having made the attempt to starve his wife to death, took his wife to the White Horse, Kenninghall, on Thursday, the 26th of Nov. where he remained until Dec. 30, without taking any nourishment...

Several transports from Cork, with part of the 43rd and 53rd Regiments, were intended to join the expedition upon the Continent, when they were overtaken by a storm in the Downs...

Official advice has been received of the loss of the Heider transport, on the coast of Holland. She had 500 men and 24 officers of the 5th regiment on board...

It is reported, that immediately upon the meeting of Parliament, a Bill will be submitted by Ministers to its consideration, for the more effectual increase of the Military Force of the country...

The brigade of gunner-drivers is to undergo an immediate augmentation of five troops. Some new regulations have lately established between the Quartermaster General's department and the Board of Ordnance...

It is having come to the Commander in Chief's knowledge that it is unusual in many Regiments, but more particularly in the Regiments of Militia, for one Officer to be charged with the payment of two or more Companies...

The following judicious Order has been issued by the Duke of York, as a check to the practice which has so long prevailed of appointing one Officer to the payment of several Companies...

The following is an extract from The Donkey Gazette, dated June 12, 1805:—On Saturday last anchored in the harbour, the ship Ariel, Capt. R. W. Loane, from Mocha...

The following is an extract from The Donkey Gazette, dated June 12, 1805:—On Saturday last anchored in the harbour, the ship Ariel, Capt. R. W. Loane, from Mocha, when she sailed on the 4th inst. in company with the Hon. Company's cruiser Princess Augusta...

The following is an extract from The Donkey Gazette, dated June 12, 1805:—On Saturday last anchored in the harbour, the ship Ariel, Capt. R. W. Loane, from Mocha...

The following is an extract from The Donkey Gazette, dated June 12, 1805:—On Saturday last anchored in the harbour, the ship Ariel, Capt. R. W. Loane, from Mocha...

The following is an extract from The Donkey Gazette, dated June 12, 1805:—On Saturday last anchored in the harbour, the ship Ariel, Capt. R. W. Loane, from Mocha...

The following is an extract from The Donkey Gazette, dated June 12, 1805:—On Saturday last anchored in the harbour, the ship Ariel, Capt. R. W. Loane, from Mocha...

The following is an extract from The Donkey Gazette, dated June 12, 1805:—On Saturday last anchored in the harbour, the ship Ariel, Capt. R. W. Loane, from Mocha...

THE LATE LORD VISCOUNT NELSON.

LAYING IN STATE.

Sunday morning the Painted Hall of Greenwich was the scene of the first and grandest of the Hospital, was, for the first time, opened for the benefit of the public, and the body of the ever to be lamented Hero, Lord Nelson, was laid out in state.

At ten o'clock, near ten thousand anxious beholders assembled in the Court-Yard of the Hospital, anxious for admittance to the Painted Hall; but an order from Lord Hood, commanding the admittance could not be obtained until after the return of the Pensioners from prayers, which would be at eleven.

At twelve o'clock, the coffin, bearing the remains of the late Lord Nelson, was carried to the Painted Hall, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view. The coffin was placed in a barge, and drawn up to the Strand, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view.

At twelve o'clock, the coffin, bearing the remains of the late Lord Nelson, was carried to the Painted Hall, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view. The coffin was placed in a barge, and drawn up to the Strand, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view.

At twelve o'clock, the coffin, bearing the remains of the late Lord Nelson, was carried to the Painted Hall, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view. The coffin was placed in a barge, and drawn up to the Strand, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view.

At twelve o'clock, the coffin, bearing the remains of the late Lord Nelson, was carried to the Painted Hall, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view. The coffin was placed in a barge, and drawn up to the Strand, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view.

At twelve o'clock, the coffin, bearing the remains of the late Lord Nelson, was carried to the Painted Hall, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view. The coffin was placed in a barge, and drawn up to the Strand, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view.

At twelve o'clock, the coffin, bearing the remains of the late Lord Nelson, was carried to the Painted Hall, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view. The coffin was placed in a barge, and drawn up to the Strand, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view.

At twelve o'clock, the coffin, bearing the remains of the late Lord Nelson, was carried to the Painted Hall, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view. The coffin was placed in a barge, and drawn up to the Strand, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view.

In the second barge were the Officers of Arms bearing the Target, Sword, Helm, and Crest of the deceased. The Banner of the deceased, a Knight of the Bath, was borne by Captain Rotherham, at the head of the barge. The great Banner was borne at the side of the barge by Captain Moorson, who was supported by two Lieutenants.

In the third barge was THE BODY. The barge was covered with black velvet, adorned with black feathers. In the centre was a Viscount's coronet, and three banners were attached to the sides of the barge, with the arms of the deceased. The barge was supported by four Lieutenants of the Royal Navy.

In the fourth barge, which was also covered with black cloth, were the remains of the late Lord Nelson, in a state of preparation for the public view. The coffin was placed in a barge, and drawn up to the Strand, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view.

At twelve o'clock, the coffin, bearing the remains of the late Lord Nelson, was carried to the Painted Hall, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view. The coffin was placed in a barge, and drawn up to the Strand, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view.

At twelve o'clock, the coffin, bearing the remains of the late Lord Nelson, was carried to the Painted Hall, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view. The coffin was placed in a barge, and drawn up to the Strand, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view.

At twelve o'clock, the coffin, bearing the remains of the late Lord Nelson, was carried to the Painted Hall, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view. The coffin was placed in a barge, and drawn up to the Strand, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view.

At twelve o'clock, the coffin, bearing the remains of the late Lord Nelson, was carried to the Painted Hall, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view. The coffin was placed in a barge, and drawn up to the Strand, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view.

At twelve o'clock, the coffin, bearing the remains of the late Lord Nelson, was carried to the Painted Hall, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view. The coffin was placed in a barge, and drawn up to the Strand, where it was deposited in a state of preparation for the public view.